Bucharest, March 29, 2019

Dear Colleagues

We have the pleasure to announce the international symposium
Romanian Slavic Studies and the dialogue of cultures in 2019. 70 years of Slavic Studies at the University of Bucharest organised by the Department of Russian and Slavic Philology under the aegis of the Romanian Association of Slavic Studies. It will be held in Bucharest on September 20–21 (Friday-Saturday); arrival day is scheduled for Thursday September 19, and departure day is Sunday, September 22.

The following topics are suggested:

- The study of Slavic languages and cultures in Europe;
- Perspectives and challenges in linguistics;
- New methods and new approaches to the literary phenomena;
- Mentalities;
- Imagologic structures;
- Ioan Bogdan – 100 hundred years from this death.

We kindly invite you to participate. Over the last years, we have succeeded in covering accommodation in our university guest house Academica for 3 nights (Thursday-Sunday, Sept.
19–22). We do hope the funds will be at the same level this year too. The fee is € 30 or 120 RON.
The contributions will be published in our journal Romanoslavica in peer review system.

Those who wish to participate are asked to send an e-mail by July 31 to senior lecturer
Duşiţa Ristin, PhD: dusita.ristin@lls.unibuc.ro

Please let us know whether you plan to arrive earlier and/or leave later than the dates specified above in order to ensure reservation. Please note that any extra night is in your charge.

You are welcome in Bucharest
